

Criminologist awarded prestigious travel fellowship

Martin Glynn, Criminologist and Visiting Lecturer in the Faculty of Education, Law and Social Sciences, has been awarded a prestigious 'Winston Churchill International Travel Fellowship'.

Martin is the only person in the West Midlands to secure this prestigious accolade and as a result will travel to the United States this summer to spend time at John Hopkins University and the Urban Leadership Institute in Baltimore. He will be studying issues related to community violence and crime among young black men as well as comparing and contrasting urban street crime violence between the UK and Baltimore.

Martin's work will assist in the understanding of issues affecting young black men in the region.

For further information see:

http://sankofaassociates.co.uk/index.php?option=com_content&view=article&id=49&Itemid=63